

Clinical Research Studies

Clinical research studies at Celerion provide an easy way to earn extra cash while helping out the medical research community. Follow these simple steps, make an impact, and put some cash in your pocket.

What to Expect

Step 1: Contact Celerion

Contact Celerion at HelpResearch.com or call 866-445-7033 to express your interest in participating in a clinical research study and create your profile.

Step 2: Review available studies and schedule a screening appointment

Review the available studies at HelpResearch.com or by phone and identify a good fit for your lifestyle. Once you select a study, schedule an in-person screening visit.

Step 3: Health screening

Common factors evaluated during the health screening include body mass index (BMI), blood pressure, medical history, lab work results, and other general health habits. During this visit, the study information, including potential side effects of the new medicine being tested, the rationale of the study, and all study procedures, will be discussed.

Step 4: Acceptance and study completion

If you match the specific study criteria, you will be notified that you are accepted into the clinical research study. Once the study begins, you will follow a defined schedule which in most cases will include a stay in the Celerion clinic.

Step 5: Get paid

Upon completion of the clinical research study, you will receive a stipend for your study participation.

To see if you are a candidate for an upcoming study, visit HelpResearch.com.